"This is a historic step for the American taxpayers. It is a step toward the future we could have if voters had once rejected the current plan by President Obama to spend the nation's tax dollars on a trillion dollar health care program for millionaires and billionaires. It's also a step toward ending taxpayer bailout of the insurance companies, and it will help bring down Obamacare." McConnell added: "By issuing a directive mandating the government pay the insurance companies for providing coverage, the Obama Administration has given in to the greedy demands of big insurance companies and made them responsible for all Americans' health. This does nothing to keep our country safe. It does nothing to end government handouts to insurance companies or the drug companies and it does no one anything but drive up prices." On Wednesday, House Speaker John Boehner (R-OH) criticized President Obama for forcing the nation's insurance companies to pay for the uninsured. "The administration must now go along with the president's directive if he wants the program to survive or go quietly," he said. The federal government's insurance market has already come under scrutiny for its impact on consumers, insurers, manufacturers and physicians on an individual basis, as well as on the larger economy. The administration, in issuing the health care directive, has indicated that it will allow insurers to charge those with pre-existing conditions and those younger than 30 more, and that premiums will go down. On Tuesday, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) estimated that the law would increase the number of uninsured by 32 million people, particularly young Americans, by 22 million, if implemented as required. And the White House has said that it will not accept $772 billion in cuts to Medicare, Medicaid, and the program's health-care subsidies that are part of the bill that passed Congress.
