About This Game

Umpire Simulator gives you the MLB umpire experience, making tough calls at 75-105 mph. You'll be watching fastballs, curve balls, and sliders trying to make the right call.

This game features true to life fastballs and breaking balls at 74-104 mph.

The first time you start it will walk you through a tutorial to learn about calling pitches.

This game is available for SteamVR and supports SteamVR Headsets (Vive and Future Headsets), Oculus Rift, and Windows Mixed Reality Headsets.

There also is a Non-VR option if you don't have VR or don't wish to use your headset sometimes. If you launch it from the Steam app you'll be given the option of VR or Non-VR.

The game can be pretty easily summed up by saying that it does exactly what it advertises, no bells, no whistles. If the idea of calling balls & strikes appeals to you, without anything beyond that, then there's a good chance you'll enjoy the game. Personally, I didn't feel like it would have been worth the full normal price of $2.99, but for the sale price of 98 cents, it was worth a shot.

The graphics/animations could certainly use improvement. I could hypothetically see a multiplayer option where the pitcher attempts to trick the umpire into getting the calls wrong. Obviously, a home run derby option would be fantastic, but obviously those things are beyond the scope of Umpire Simulator.

Just ask yourself if you're willing to pay whatever the current price is based on what it does have, rather than what it doesn't have. I can't really recommend the game, but I can say that the program does what it claims to do. I've been waiting for something of this nature to come to Steam. LOVE this concept. The game itself is simple enough and it functions as it should. The strike zone though is a little high and needs to be translated down about 3" or so [Should be from the hollow (below) the knee, to the midpoint between the underarm and the top of the uniform pants]. Keep this up and please everyone buy this and check it out. We need to reward new and innovative ideas and programmers. Excellent work!!
